

GLR Learning Tuesdays – a key element of CGLR’s Networked Learning for Leadership, Action and Engagement Strategy – is a webinar series powered by the Campaign for Grade-Level Reading (CGLR) that brings to the GLR Network of over 300 local GLR campaign communities a predictable and reliable set of learning opportunities to advance their work toward early school success and successful parents. By using the webinar format as a portal, we create opportunities for communities to explore the best science, strategies, programs and ideas with an eclectic mix of presenters who bring knowledge derived from research, from practice, and from lived experience.

Webinars are scheduled every Tuesday, from 3:00- 4:30 pm ET, each offering an informative, thought-- provoking and engaging presentation utilizing Zoom technology. Webinars also include community commentary and 20-30 minutes of Q & A. With support from national funders, GLR Learning Tuesdays includes the following webinar series:

- Science Matters! focused on the science of brain development. This series is sponsored by the Bezos Family Foundation
- Productive Parent/Teacher Partnerships, focused on elevating models, frameworks and strategies toward elevating the essential parent/teacher dyad. This series is sponsored by the Carnegie Corporation of New York
- Partner Webinars, highlighting the work of mission-critical partners toward ensuring early school success
- Emerging Models, focused on promising strategies and innovations to accelerate progress
- Big Bettable, insights to elevate deeper and more strategic investments on supporting parents’ success

- Housing Partner Discussion Series, lifting up the intersectionality of housing and early school success by showcasing cutting edge research, national programs and partnerships, and ground- level innovations from the field of public and affordable housing.
